THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

School has been in full force for only a short time now but lots of things have been happening around here. Using the editor's prerogative I am going to comment on a couple of the outstanding incidents:

Last week was chock full of goings-on, but apathy set in once again. Out of 2,400 students enrolled, in this election less than 50% took the time to cast their votes in the class officers election. The students made a very wise decision to limit campaigning to the minimum in view of the fact we will witness three other elections during the course of the year. But—was it worth it? Ill informed voters do not make good voters! And many comments were made by new students and those living off-campus that they did not know anything about the nominees or even the election in general.

Walk-out Day has come and gone once more. But something seemed to be missing — it could have been any Saturday afternoon. The one glowing spot in the festivities was the movie, which seemed to be correct in mood, theme, and setting. Granted, it would be quite difficult to arrange an outstanding program on the sly as Walk-out Day must be. But, there are still high hopes for Homecoming!

'Twas a lovely Friday afternoon, and the Stroller was ambling past the entrance to the campus of dear old NWMSC when he happened to notice a prodigious caravan of wheels leaving through the gate of ye beloved college. The thing that stood out in this procession was the suitcases and clothes on hangers in the rear seats of said automobiles. The wise ones could only deduce that these young people were leaving the campus to go somewhere. Where were they going? Were they going on a trip, a lost weekend, or to town to go shopping?

After a few minutes of cautious concentration, the sage could only come to the conclusion that these people were going home, home to see their mommies and daddies, home to see their steadies, home for the good times of Podunk. These people were members of the elite group, the Sammy Sampsonite Club.

The question occurred in the mind of the Stroller, "What Makes the Sammys run home?" Is it because they cannot find anything worthwhile to do here, or is it because they do not know what is worthwhile and what is not? Is it because there aren't any things to do or is it because they expect something to be handed to them on a silver platter with nothing in return? Is it because they recognize their own problem but fail to do anything about it? Is it because they refuse to be collegiate?

Exodus

Homecoming Tradition Continues

Crowning the queen is a tradition expected of every homecoming, but it has not always been part of the tradition.

Our first queen was Betty Drennen and the year 1941. She was the president of Sigma Phi swimming club, treasurer of the sophomore class, secretary of the A Capella Choir and a member of the Barkatze and Dance club.

The first queen was crowned by Student Body President, Ted Young. Her throne, a hollow football placed on a truck, was covered with gladiolas.

This first led NWMSC into a future lined with homecoming beauties. Next in line followed Barbara Garrett of Alpha Sigma Alpha, the 1942 homecoming queen.

Mary Bruce reigned over festivities in 1943. She was a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha.

Scoring again for Alpha Sigma Alpha was Jodie Montgomery, queen of 1944.

Basketball took the place of football festivities due to difficulties. Jeanie Stewart of Alpha Sigma Alpha was the queen for 1945.

A member of Student Christian Association, Commercial and Business Association reigned in homecoming in 1946: Joyce Heck.

Nineteen forty-seven brought Margaret Currey of Tri-Sigma to rule as queen.

Maxine McDermoth became homecoming queen in 1948. She was a member of Tri-Sigma.

A Green and White Pepper was ruler of 1949 festivities: Joyce Bailly.

A Tri-Sigma, Mary Bauman came to the throne in 1950 as queen.

Joan Hansen ruled the year of 1951; and she was a Tri-Sig.

Queen for 1952 was Mazie Deshon, another Tri-Sigma.

Joyce Brown, a member of the Independent Club, became Queen in 1953.

Nineteen fifty-four was another year for Tri-Sigma; Pat Boydston.

As 1955 rolled around Jean Swanson took the throne; she, too, a member of Tri-Sigma.

Velma Swartz, a Tri-Sigma, ruled in 1956 homecoming events.

Nineteen fifty-seven: Donna sue Jones, queen, and a member of Tri-Sigma.

Joan Hill took her place among the queens in 1958, a Tri-Sigma girl.

Nineteen fifty-nine saw Gay Laugner an Alpha Sigma Alpha take the title of queen of homecoming.

Barb Loyd was crowned queen of homecoming in the 1960 homecoming events.

Ann Chick was our most recent queen; the Alpha's claim her.

This marks the end of the long list of previous queens. They were all beautiful representatives of the students of NWMSC. The next queen will proudly take her place among this list of campus queens. Good luck candidates and congratulations to the next homecoming queen and to the queens to come.

Inquiring Reporter

As there are elections in the air, the Northwest Missourian has paralleled the contests in an attempt to get student opinion on publicity.

For this reason we asked: "Should the Homecoming Queen election be run in the same manner as the recent class officer election or should it have the opening of doors and the wearing of lapel cards?"

Dick Ross, So., Maryville.

You have to have publicity. When they campaign, they get the non-Greek note.

Tom Custer, Jr., Harlan, Iowa.

The election for queen is more of a contest. It is almost strictly publicity. If it was run like the election, it wouldn't be a contest. However, it would save a lot of work. Shanna Griffin, So., Woodburn, Iowa.

No, because the girls are really not known. And in a campaign, the students who don't know the individual girls become better acquainted with their qualifications and personalities.

Carolyn Gould, Jr., Parkville.

I prefer last year, because I like the tradition. Adds to the glamour of Homecoming. Dick Houck, Sr., Corning, Iowa.

There should definitely be a campaign. All the excitement is lost without publicity.

Walkout Day, 1915

Students who participate in Walkout Day activity in 1962 may not know that the tradition started on the campus just forty-seven years ago. On Friday, October 22, 1915, the first walkout took place.

The Plot

On Thursday night, two literary societies, the Philomatheans and the Eurekaans, met for their weekly programs. A group of young men students previously had decided among themselves that the fine October weather would be wasted if the school could not have a picnic; the faculty seemed not to have noticed the excellent picnic weather! Some of the young men belonged to one society, some to the other. They spread their notions, and the societies voted to have a walkout the next day. Each was to spread the news to other students but to say nothing to any faculty member.

The Play

Friday morning came. The signal was given, and 208 of about 300 enrolled walked out. They stopped in the lower corridor only long enough for everybody to be informed what was happening and where they were going; then they started down the Long Walk; singing the school songs and giving the school yells.

The Prexy

The astonished faculty members were left gasping. Somebody got word to the president, who was at his home eating breakfast. He left his food, dashed out of the house, and met the students. He thought it was an insurrection and remonstrated with them. But the students, on picnic bent, gave a laugh and a cheer for Prexy, and went right on down through the main part of town, and out to Atherton's Woods, east of town.

The Ploy

Once the walkout was accomplished, the students began to think about what the consequences would be. They held a business meeting, elected John Doe as president and Sara Doe as secretary and voted that they would all stand together, come what might.

The Platter

Then they appointed two committees: a foods committee to go back to town and buy food for the group and a committee to go back to invite the faculty and the president to come out to the woods for the picnic.

The faculty accepted the invitation; the president politely refused. The foods committee provided 70 loaves of bread, 20 pounds of wieners, three gallons of pickles, 19 dozen doughnuts, 18 dozen cookies, three bushels of apples, and 20 gallons of cider—and everyone helped pay the bill.

The Plat

The whole day was spent in the woods. After the lunch around a big bonfire, everybody took part in games or wandered around in the beautiful woods. Students and faculty alike pronounced the day a success.

Something happened to annoy the president more than he was already annoyed. The students of the Maryville High School, learning that the Normal School students walked out, staged a walkout of their own. The evening paper carried a headline which said something about the force of a bad example. The president did not like that.

The Plea

The next morning, the president called into his office four boys whom he suspected as having been leaders — and his guess was almost right. He told them his side of the story, and they told him theirs. Finally they came to an agreement — the students might each year have a picnic on some fall day, provided they would let the president know ahead when it was to be so that it would not conflict with some special school affair.

The Pledge

Every year, then, from 1915 to 1962 the students have had Walkout Day.

It has been changed with the years. At first the students actually walked out — they did not stop downtown but went to the woods for a day of self-directed fun. They paid 35 cents for their food, which the Senior class provided.

In the thirties, the custom of having the college kitchen supply the food began, and the College Park became the place to serve the food. A picture show and then a dance took the place of the picnic. Management of the day went into the hands of the Student Council, as it was called then. When initiation of freshmen came into the picture, some big huskies seemed to be needed; thus the M Club members were summoned to take over, and Kangaroo court followed the walkout.

SNEA to Host Luncheon

SNEA members will hear guest speaker Virginia Bean at Horace Mann school October 11.

A luncheon will be served from 12:00 to 12:30. Election of district officers will be held.

Bearcat QB Club Passes Fund Goal With $3,035 Total

"Over the top."

That's the way Paul Fields, chairman of the Bearcat Quarterback Club athletic scholarship fund drive, expressed himself on the fourth annual campaign.

A total of $3,035 in contributions have been tabulated. The goal was $3,000. This brings to more than $14,000 the amount of donations made by followers of Northwest State College athletic teams in the four annual drives.

Danforth Grants Open to Qualified

Qualified male seniors planning careers in college teaching are eligible for Danforth Graduate Fellowships.

The Danforth program was established in 1951 with the hope that through financial aid, if needed, and personal encouragement, the Foundation could assist about 500 men annually in becoming the most competent and highly-motivated college teachers they have the capacity to become.

The fellowships are open to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Nominations close Oct. 28.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 (as well as $500 per child) for married men, plus tuition and fees. Students without financial needs also are invited to apply.

There are now 472 Danforth fellows in graduate study preparing to teach, and 267 more already teaching in some 150 colleges in this country and in 20 institution abroad.

Frosh Face Big Year

Another Northwest Missouri State College year has begun but for incoming freshmen it means more than just another year. Many of the entering freshmen are probably away from home for the first time and will look at their new found freedom as a milestone in the life. But for a number of the freshmen it could be a short lived appearance at NWMSC.

It is an accepted fact that more students drop-out or flunk out the first year than in any other single college year. There are a number of reasons for this high rate of freshman drop-outs.

The first and one of the hardest to overcome for freshmen is the lack of effective study habits. Most students in high school have been so engulfed in extra-curricular activities that they have not found time to work up to their study potential. Northwest Missouri State offers, for the student who has difficulties in certain areas, extra help in adjusting to his academic environment.

A second reason for freshmen washout is an unrealistic concept of college life. College is not a playground. Too many entering freshmen bring with them a false illusion of college as one big social adventure.

College is a place to sink root in scholarship and to prepare for a career. Heavy class assignments and a great deal of related reading can be expected with no one breathing down the students neck to see that assignments are completed.

Another problem to cope with is freshmen unpreparedness for hard work. Most freshmen are accustomed to less difficult assignments and lesser demands on their time.

The only way to alleviate this problem is to learn how to budget time to study, school activities, and social life. If it is found necessary, a chart should be made to list all activities of each day with their time schedule.

The last problem is one that is often found in freshmen classrooms and that being the lack of incentives to become a competent student. This is apt to be the student who has a high IQ but flunks out in his first year.

If a college degree is not enough incentive to motivate sacrificing of time and energy, that student should wait until he has matured enough to take his place in the college community.

From The Student, Warrensburg.

Are You a Don Juan

If you can answer "yes" to each of these questions, you are already on your way to being a Don Juan. If you answer 8-10 of the questions "yes", you will be on your way to being a Sir Lancelot. If you answer 5-8 of the question "yes", you will be on your way to obscurity. Finally if you answer 0-5 of the questions "yes", you will be on your way to . . .

1. Do you steal admiring glances at her when you know she's looking?
2. Act mildly jealous when she talks to another man?
3. Frequently bring her flowers, candy or other presents for no special reason?
4. Compliment her often on the way she looks or cooks?
5. Take her out on the town to show her off once a month?
6. Never contradict her outright?
7. Always ask her where she would like to eat and how she would like to spend the evening?
8. Wear the ties she gives you—even if it kills you?
9. Never show up late for an appointment with her?
10. Make advance reservations whenever possible, instead of escorting her from one over-crowded place to another?

All you need to remember—all the time—is that even if women can sob through an entire movie—yet remain unmoved when your team loses a heartbreaker, women are people.

Stephens Adds To Core Program

COLUMBIA, MO. —(I.P.)—

Six courses have been designated as "Basic Courses" by the faculty at Stephens College. As Basic Courses, they will be recommended by faculty advisors to be included in each student's studies at the College for either the Associate in Arts or Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees, so the student will achieve a breadth of study during her time at Stephens.

Designed so that each deals with an area of human inquiry, the courses termed basic by the faculty are: Communication, General Humanities, Contemporary Social Issues, Basic Beliefs in Human Experience, Foundations of Natural Science, and Home and Community.

The course in Foundations of Natural Science was inaugurated last year after a detailed inquiry by the Science faculty into a new type of course to give young women more than the usual "introductory" course.

Frosh Year Gets Skids

NEW HAVEN, CONN. —(I.P.)— Yale University finds that the traditional Freshman Year is becoming obsolete, according to a report by a special faculty committee of seven professors. The committee urges a revamping of the curriculum and the handling of first-year college students.

The report recommends that the Freshman Class be split up and housed with upperclassmen, and not, as has been the case here for more than 30 years, treated as a separate unit on a separate campus. To this end, the administration of the Freshman Year should be assimilated into Yale College which would be responsible for all four years of the undergraduate student body, the report recommends.

In reaffirming Yale's policy requiring five courses in the Freshman Year, as against a minimum of four required in many other colleges, the report states: "At the same time we believe that a principal of flexibility should prevail, and flexibility is not difficult to secure at Yale, where rich resources are provided for undergraduates."

In their recommendation for a change in the administration of the Freshman Year, the committee points out that "we are more impressed by the likenesses of the Freshmen to the rest of the undergraduates than we are by their differences. There seems to be no good reason for delaying their assimilation into the student body of the College; on the contrary, we think that from the outset they should begin to participate as full-fledged members of the community in all respects."

"Less care than in the past need to be taken of their social and emotional life, and surely less spoon-feeding and more self-determination would encourage the quicker attainment of maturity."

SNEA to Hold Planning Session

The Student National Education Association will hold their pledging ceremony this evening at 7 p.m. in the Gold Room of the Student Union. All new members are urged to attend.

Be On Guard

Reports have been received that fictitious firm, operating from an out-of-state location, has been selling orders to several fraternities and sororities throughout the country for personalized stationery. Not a bad idea, but there's a hitch — the Greek groups never received the stationery after the money had been paid, in advance of course.

All organizations are warned to be on guard of the possibility of being approached by this non-existent firm. By all means, check out fully the reputation of any out-of-state companies which "pretend" to supply a "something for nothing" deal.

A good way to combat, or better yet, even avoid this is simply to patronize the reputable merchants of Maryville.

Brass Quintet Music Spans History

Something old, something new are skillfully combined in the selection of numbers for the Brass Quintet. Newly formed this year, it is one of several small specialty groups in the music department.

Extensive work for brass was done in the 15th, 16th and 17th centuries. Then at the end of the Baroque era, interest waned and all through the classic and romantic periods very little music for brass ensembles appeared. Recently, contemporary composers have begun working in the field again.

This span in music history is evident in the compositions which the Brass Quintet has selected. These range from CANZONA PER SONARE number 2 by Giovanni Gabrieli (1557-1612) in 1608 and Suite by Claudio Monteverdi in 1608 to ADVENTURES OF A TIN HORN by David Uber and FOUR MOODS FOR BRASS QUINTET by Harris in 1957.

A concert for MENC has already been scheduled as has a tour of high schools. On this tour, the members will each appear as soloists.

May We Present--

The next time you hear ukulele music, don't dismiss it as an Hawaiian record. It might be Miss Carolyn Peterson, library science instructor at NWMSC and librarian at Horace Mann, indulging in one of her favorite hobbies.

From Carl Junction, Missouri where she was an editor of the college newspaper and president of the Modern Language Club, she was also secretary of the college's chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national scholastic honorary fraternity.

At Missouri University Miss Peterson was a member of the English Honorary Society and the German Club. She earned her AB there.

She did her graduate study (for which she was awarded a Missouri State Library Scholarship) at the University of Denver, where she received her MA.

After completing her education, Miss Peterson worked as a professional librarian in the children's library for the Town and Country Regional Library at Joplin, Missouri for two years before coming to NWMSC.

In her off duty hours, Miss Peterson enjoys archery and bowling as well as sewing and knitting.

Librarians to Attend Joplin Meeting

Miss Elvirga Denning, Miss Barbara Palling, Miss Carolyn Sue Peterson, and Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson will attend the Missouri Library Association (MLA) meeting in Joplin today, Thursday, and Friday.

At the meeting, Mr. Johnson will lead the discussion on library standards. Miss Palling is on the recruitment committee, and is preparing a brochure on financial aid to graduate library students.

Anita (Kuhlman) Lee is president of the organization.

In order to be eligible for membership, a student must have completed 45 hours of academic work and 12 hours of courses in health, physical education or recreation, three of which may be activity credits. The Office Cat

An invasion of Musca domestica* is on at NWMSC. No place seems safe from this not-so-charming swarm.

Word seems to have spread through the troops of the swatting game in the library: Staff versus Flies.

The Flies are ahead at the present time but the contest for the highest FSA* among the staff members may turn the tables.

According to rumor, Mr. James Johnson (automatically captain of the Staff team because of his position of head librarian) is leading. His exact FSA is not known, but I am sure that any instructor who can make more than 20 hits in one hour, without pausing once in his lecture, stands a good chance of having the highest average. Mr. Johnson is also noted for his ability to hit several with one swat. (However, I don't believe he has managed "seven at one blow" yet.)

Fly swatting is a rather unique sport in the fact that teams and/or individuals may participate. Anyone wishing to play is cordially invited to bring his favorite swatter and try his skill. If another complete team would like to enter, it also would be most welcome.

Since we don't want to lose the true spirit of sportsmanship inherent in the game, no insecticides may be used; only the original fly swatter which has been used since the beginning of the game will be allowed.

And the Truth

by Dr. Dildine

It may not be merely an accident that scholars and religionists have been subjected at the same time to rigid and effective controls. Tsars and Marxists both have believed that neither set of forces, education or religion, could be allowed to act freely without endangering the total supremacy of the government.

The founders of this college have thought differently. Most of the members of that board whose names appear engraved on the east tower have passed on, and their voices have become silent. But they have announced that it is their judgment that knowledge and virtue belong together, science and religion are partners.

Governor Folk and his fellow builders put their convictions in something as permanent as stone and chiselled them there, hoping withal that those convictions would be exemplified and perpetuated in the vital substance of a supply of superior teachers for American schools.

We must all have seen their motto, "and the truth shall make you free."

The Buddha had a moment when the very inmost truth about life came to him. He began a changed life, and he might have said in his own way that truth had made him a free man.

Confucius had sought truth for years, from the ancients, to be sure. But arriving at the age of seventy he could declare that in doing whatever he pleased he was free from all sense of error or self condemnation.

Zoroaster pursued truth into the realms of the unknown future and believed that knowledge and virtue were inseparable in their control of destiny.

Philosophers in Greece or Rome or other countries may have expressed some judgments which could be translated in the same motto, "the truth shall make you free."

What the brief statement really proclaims is to be known only by taking a glance at the actual source and scene from which it sprang forth.

A disagreement was in progress. The majority group, the accusers of Jesus, had its mind set on crushing all opposition. Having failed to make the arrest of Jesus, whose influence they sought to destroy, they rejected flatly and scornfully a fair appeal to listen until they could truly understand the man's position.

They drove away from him all supporters but a very few who did catch his real meaning. To them was offered the assurance that loyalty to the truth already grasped would bring a total clarification on the points at issue, and that what had been made available for themselves was both intellectual integrity and final fulfillment in personal development.

The freedom as Jesus had it in mind was not from legal slavery but from the persistence of the impulses toward mistaken and evil attitudes and behavior.

It is to an institution upholding these ideals that all students are most sincerely welcomed.

There are five points illustrated in the present operation of the college which shows that the board of regents and the faculty and most of our students give continued emphasis to the ideals and purposes which were incorporated into the building of the college back in 1907.

There is a definite place provided in each year's schedule of college activities for occasions to which our administration gives full open approval of the principle that religion should have a place in the life of the college and in the lives of the members of the college community.

There is a definite recognition of the propriety of student interest in religious concerns. Time is assured for such voluntary organizations to function regularly, and a most suitable chapel is available for such meetings in the Union Building.

Enrollment, either of students or faculty members is open without prejudice to adherents of whatever set of religious beliefs each person may hold for himself. It is withheld only from the person whose beliefs cloak an indefensible deviation in practical behavior. Sincere intelligent beliefs are given full respect.

No academic freedom is denied to faculty members, either in the classroom or in other associations, as long as their declarations are in accord with the general policies of freedom of belief and speech and the remarks made in class session are germane to the material about which the student is expected to learn.

The spirit of the state of Missouri as expressed so clearly and well by Governor Folk and his committee is as much honored today in the ongoing processes of this college as it was when the motto was inscribed.

New Look Given To Old Ad Building

Each fall, students returning to school are concerned with their wardrobes. Time and thought both have been spent on the question: How can I have the "new look" this fall?

It is doubtful however if any will have achieved the results of one of our campus buildings. The Administration Building is displaying the "new look" this fall. The color is slate; the fabric, slate. It has been used alone in some areas and as an accent in others.

On the south and west sides a complete new roof has been added as has new guttering. In addition the rest of the roof area has been repaired as needed.

Since slate is affected by temperature changes, those areas exposed to the most temperature fluctuation required complete replacement. The reason slate was used instead of some other material is its durability. This new slate roof will last much longer and give better service than a composition roof, for example.

In addition to a new roof the administration building experienced more face lifting: the removal of the skylight over the band room in order to improve ventilation there.

The time required to complete this "new look" for fall was three months, the cost was $50,000, and the wearing time is expected to be 50 years. This is the first time since the construction, that the roof has been repaired to this extent.

Chalk Talk . . . Bob Cobb

At this writing, the New York Yankees and the San Francisco Giants were engaged in a showdown for the World Series opening victory.

The Bronx Bombers coasted into the Fall Classic without a great deal of sweat, while the Giants closed in on the sagging Dodgers with a slashing stretch-drive somewhat reminiscent to that of the 1951 season when Bobby Thompson stroked the Homer Heard 'Round the World.

Should the Giants proceed to capture the Series, it would be a fitting tribute to their manager, Al Dark. Dark, as a player, possessed that "something extra" characteristic of all stars. The same holds true for Dark's managerial talents.

In the clutch situation, Dark could fill the bill. Whenever the crucial hit was needed or the vital play from the field arose, Dark could be counted on.

That extra spark, which winners like Al Dark have, is the ingredient missing from this year's Bearcat football. Thus far, when the chips have been down, the 'Cats, like the proverbial arab, have folded their tent and stolen softly into the night.

Scoreless Skein

Although some good work has been done by Dick Snyder, Glen Acksel, and Larry Richardson to cite a few, Coach Baker and Company had been shut out for ten consecutive quarters before the Nebraska Wesleyan game.

The leadership, spark, or whatever intangible it may be has been sorely lacking.

This spark cannot be manufactured solely from the grid-iron, but must come from the stands also. The grid audience has been comprised of a listless, apathetic, ultra-conservative group who watch but do not participate in the game itself.

There must be co-participation between fan and player to promote a conducive winning situation.

Once this winning situation has been created perhaps that extra drive or spark may be ignited on the playing field.

Yell It Up

We invite you to go to the Bearcat games with enthusiasm and be ready to yell, cheer, stomp, boo, or hiss, but please say something.

Our college football games should have a carnival-like atmosphere instead of their present wake-like situation.

Bearcat B-Team Features Frosh

After dropping their season's opener to the Kirkville Bulldogs at Trenton recently, the Northwest Missouri State Bearcat freshmen squad is in the process of ironing out several rough spots in their attack.

The 'Cat B-team was slammed 18-0 at Trenton, enabling the Bulldogs to avenge their 1961 loss to Maryville. Most of the 'Cat B-leaners are freshmen, with the exception of a few sophomores. Directing their attack have been Coaches Burton Richey, Marion Moss, and Jack Lasley, Dean of Men and former Bearcat star end.

Coach Richey stated that poor timing caused most of the offensive woes against Kirkville, while over-all defensive work needed improvement. Richey also indicated that some time had been devoted to passing in the practices since the game.

Add Two

Two other contests have been scheduled for the B-squad. One was to have been played against Peru, Nebraska, but was post-poned. The other was played October 8 at Cameron pitting the Bearcats against the William Jewell Reserves.

The Bearcats came out on top by downing the junior Cardinals by the score of 13-6, thus evening their record at 1 and 1.

The Northwest Missouri State College Bearcats suffered their fourth loss of the season in as many outings at the hands of Nebraska Wesleyan by a 13-6 score in a sluggishly-played game Saturday night at Beal Park.

The Bearcats scored in the first quarter as Bernie Ricono ran around end after Roger Voss had recovered a fumble and led going into the final period. Wesleyan climaxed a drive with a four-yard slant to paydirt, and following the kickoff, they intercepted a pass to finish the scoring.

The Cats started another drive in the late stages after recovering another fumble, but the drive fell short as they ran out of downs on the Wesleyan six-yard stripe. With only 30 seconds left, Wesleyan easily ran out the clock to take home the victory.

Both teams were anything but poised as the game was full of miscues and failure to capitalize on scoring opportunities. The Cats appeared to be over-eager, while Wesleyan seemed in a state of confusion.

It was a non-conference game.
